CLINTON RELEASES AUDIO EXCERPTS FROM BOOK

Hillary Clinton says in her new book that Donald Trump made her skin crawl by stalking her around the stage in a campaign debate and she wonders if she should have told him to "back up, you creep." In audio excerpts of the book "What Happened" aired on Wednesday on MSNBC, Clinton described her 2016 campaign as "joyful, humbling, infuriating and just plain baffling" and acknowledged she failed her millions of supporters by losing to Trump in the November election. In the excerpts, Clinton described the Oct. 9 debate in St. Louis in which Trump followed her closely about the stage, lurking behind her as she fielded questions from a live television audience. The debate came two days after an audiotape emerged in which Trump was heard bragging about groping women.

GOP REBUKES THREATS OF GOVERNMENT SHUTDOWN

Donald Trump's fellow Republicans rebuked the president on Wednesday after his threat to shut down the U.S. government over funding for a border wall rattled markets and cast a shadow over congressional efforts to raise the country's debt ceiling and pass spending bills. Congress will have about 12 working days when it returns on Sept. 5 from its summer break to approve spending measures to keep the government from shutting down, and a deadline also is closing in for raising the cap on the amount the federal government may borrow. With those deadlines looming in late September and early October, Trump raised the prospect in a speech on Tuesday evening of a shutdown if Congress does not agree to fund his long-promised wall along the border with Mexico.

NYC CANDIDATES OFFER FEW DETAILS IN DEBATE

4 Mayor Bill de Blasio and mayoral candidate Sal Albanese faced each other in a prime-time debate on Wednesday, touching on everything from political donations from real estate developers and housing to Rikers Island and education. "I want to make the city more livable. I want to be the mass transit mayor. I want to make sure that we have greenspace," Albanese said toward the end of the debate.

"I want to spend my energy working hard for New Yorkers," De Blasio's tone aimed to ensure voters that New York was not just a city for the rich and powerful. "It's your city. We have to protect New York City as a city for everyone," he said, saying that a focus on jobs, transparency and education was central to such a goal. "We've come a long way with pre-K; let's go farther. Let's make sure this is a city for everyone."

AMEX TO PAY $96M OVER DISCRIMINATORY TERMS

5 American Express will end up paying $96 million to credit card customers in Puerto Rico and other U.S. territories for charging higher interest rates and engaging in other discriminatory practices, federal regulators said. The U.S. Consumer Financial Protection Bureau announced that more than 200,000 consumers at two of the company's banking subsidiaries had been harmed by the practices, which also included stricter credit cutoffs and less debt forgiveness than offered to customers in U.S. states. American Express said in a statement the discrepancy was discovered in an internal review and reported to the CFPB in 2013. The company voluntarily agreed to provide $95 million in compensation to affected customers, but said it "absolutely does not" agree with the CFPB's contention that it had discriminated against clients.

NYC MAYORAL RACE 2017

Queens woman is face of anti-de Blasio movement

Bo Dietl campaigner Vickie Paladino says the only way to save New York is by booting de Blasio.

SAM NEWHOUSE
@scnewhouse
sam.newhouse@metro.us

Vickie Paladino burst into New York's political consciousness last month when she directed a no-holds-barred, spur-of-the-moment dressing-down of Mayor Bill de Blasio after he held a news conference in Queens.

"You let our police officers down!" was Palladino's fiery cry, which spread far on conservative media, where little love is lost for New York's left-wing mayor.

Days later, Paladino joined the campaign of Bo Dietl, a former NYPD detective and media personality who is running as an independent, as a community liaison, speaking to voters in neighborhoods around the city to help convince them to support an independent candidate. While she has participated in campaigns before, her moment in the spotlight was a complete shock, she said, coming spontaneously while she was on the way home from getting her nails done.

"My husband said, 'Look! There's the mayor.' I said, 'No kidding.' He pulled the car over, and the rest, as they say, is history," Paladino told Metro. "I went viral. Who knew?"

The encounter came shortly after the death of police officer Miosotis Familia, and Paladino was livid that de Blasio went to Germany to attend protests at the G-20 conference after the death, not to mention her blame for de Blasio over general quality of life and crime issues. She disagreed with early media accounts that described her as a mere "heckler."

"This was not a heckler — this was an angry New Yorker who had something on her mind," Paladino said. "He's using New York City as a stepping stone to the White House or to pursue a global fantasy. ... People are mad as hell. Doesn't matter what party you belong to. People don't like him. They hate him; they hate what he's done to the city."

Vickie Paladino supports mayoral candidate Bo Dietl. FACEBOOK

De Blasio's campaign did not respond individually to Paladino's criticisms.

"Mayor de Blasio expanded pre-K for every 4-year-old and will do the same for every 3-year-old. Crime is at record lows, jobs are at a record high, New York City is building affordable housing at a record pace, and rents were frozen for more than two million tenants. That is the mayor's record, and it is one that New Yorkers are rallying around," a campaign spokesman said.

With that record under his belt, de Blasio looks set to cruise to a smooth re-election as mayor this November. He has a clear lead in the primary polls over other Democrats, and a Quinnipiac University poll last month found he is likely to beat Republican challenger Nicole Malliotakis, 57 to 22 percent. Throw Dietl in the mix, and the numbers change to 52 percent for de Blasio, 15 percent for Malliotakis and 11 percent for Dietl, Quinnipiac found.

But Paladino, 63, a former interior decorator and Whitestone native, is certain that "de BLAAHsio," as she calls him (when not referring to him by his birth name, Warren Wilhelm, as she called his renaming

*"If he wins,
we're doomed.
You'll see more
'for sale' signs
than you ever dreamed about."*

a sign of a "deception"), is the wrong leader for the city, and she believes Dietl can still win.

"If [de Blasio] wins, we're doomed. You'll see more 'for sale' signs than you ever dreamed about. There will be a mass exodus out of here," she said. "The city is heading back to the Dinkins and Lindsay days. ... It's about what he's done to morale and our quality of life. ... He has brought the quality of life down to subhuman conditions for all these people who ride on subways." (De Blasio has proposed a new tax on the wealthy to fund the MTA, but he also says the state is responsible for paying to fix the aging transit system.)

Agree or disagree, Paladino's sentiment is often echoed by many others around the city and on social media, who either strongly disagree with de Blasio's policies or deeply fear the social reforms he champions.

"It's got nothing to do with Democrat, Republican, conservative, liberal. It's about saving this city," she said. "He is an egotistical maniac using New York as a stepping stone for his global agenda, which is sheer fantasy."

Trump protester reveals what it's like to be detained by the Secret Service

Melissa Byrne was in a public space inside Trump Tower when she was cuffed and questioned by 10 officers.

MICHAEL MARTIN
@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

An anti-Trump protester, who was in a Starbucks within the public space inside Trump Tower, says she was detained by the Secret Service and subjected to invasive questioning after unfurling a banner.

In a piece in the Washington Post, Philadelphia resident Melissa Byrne — who says she is a former Bernie Sanders and Hillary Clinton supporter and “like any good political operative, run on coffee” — called her interrogation “bananas.”

Byrne said that she had brought an anti-Trump banner inside the tower with her, and after sipping some java, hung it over a rail overlooking the Trump Tower atrium that was still within Starbucks. She was detained by NYPD officers.

“Since Starbucks is a public place and I was a paying guest, I knew I hadn’t violated any laws. At worst, I could be banned from the building,” she said. “I expected from past protest actions that I’d be given a warning and a request to leave. I clearly and politely explained to the NYPD officers who detained me that the protest was done and I was heading out.”

Byrne was then cuffed and brought to a room off the atrium with 10 NYPD and Secret Service officers, where she could see Trump campaign materials were stored.

She listed a portion of her conversation and some of the questions she was asked:

NYPD: “Why would you come to the president’s home to do this?”

Byrne: “It was wrong for the president to support white supremacy.”

NYPD: “Don’t you respect the president?”

Byrne: “I don’t respect people who align with Nazis.”

Secret Service: “Do you have negative feelings toward the president?”

Byrne: “Yes.”

Secret Service: “Can you elaborate?”

Byrne: “He should be impeached and should not be president.”

Byrne also says she was asked if she had been inside the White House (she had, as a tour guide) and whether she had mental health disorders or ever had suicidal thoughts, and she was threatened with a felony and asked to sign a waiver so the Secret Service could obtain her medical records.

When Byrne asked for a lawyer, she was told she could be held longer, then released with a ban from Trump Tower.

“It was clear right away that these officials wouldn’t see me the way I see myself: as a reasonably responsible, skilled nonviolent political operative who works on a mix of electoral and issues campaigns,” she wrote. “To them, I was clearly a threat to national security. It felt like an interrogation on ‘Homeland.’”

But her experience with the Secret Service didn’t end there.

Byrne said that the Secret Service canvassed her neighborhood in West Philadelphia a couple of days later, going so far as to question a woman she had never met. The woman later contacted her on Facebook to share the encounter with her, relaying that they had asked whether this woman knew Byrne and if she was a threat to the president. Apparently her neighborhood choice paid off. “Since I live in West Philly, she replied that the only threat lives in the White House and that the president is racist,” Byrne wrote in her piece.

Danish police identify torso as missing submarine journalist

Police on Wednesday identified a headless female torso washed ashore in Copenhagen as that of Swedish reporter Kim Wall, who they believe was killed by a Danish inventor on board his homemade submarine.

Wall, who was researching a story on inventor Peter Madsen, went missing after he took her out to sea in his 56-foot submarine on Aug. 10. He denies killing her, saying she died in an accident.

Announcing the results of tests on the torso, discovered Monday, police spokesman Jens Moller said it had suffered damage suggesting "an attempt to make sure air and gas inside should leave the body so that it would not rise from the seabed".

He added: "There was also some metal attached to the body, allegedly also to make sure the body would sink to the bottom."

The arms, legs and head had been sawn from the body. Analysis showed a match with Wall's DNA, which the police had gathered from a toothbrush and a hairbrush, and with blood found in the submarine, Moller said.

Police still do not know the cause of death, and divers are searching for more body parts.

Madsen, 46, is charged with manslaughter, which carries a sentence of between five years and life in prison. His lawyer Betina Hald Engmark told Reuters he was maintaining his innocence and sticking to his account that Wall's death was accidental.

The macabre case has riveted not only Swedish and Danish media, but also made headlines around the world.

A day after taking Wall out on his UC3 Nautilus submarine, the inventor was rescued after the vessel sank. Police found nobody else on board.

The submarine is one of three constructed by Madsen and one of the largest privately built ones in the world. It can carry eight people and weighs 40 tons when fully equipped. REUTERS

Where will NYC Ferry's Astoria route stop?

The Hornblower-operated service will launch its final route of 2017 on Tuesday.

NIKKI M. MASCALI
@MetroNewYork
nikki.mascali@metro.us

Starting on Tuesday, New Yorkers will be able to take an NYC Ferry from Astoria to the Financial District. Ahead of the ferry service's final route launch of 2017, the New York City Economic Development Corporation (NYCEDC) has announced the five scheduled stops it will make during the 45-minute trip:

- Astoria at Hallets Cove (3-10 Astoria Blvd.)
- Roosevelt Island (104 Ed Koch Queensboro Bridge)
- Long Island City at Gantry State Park (47th Road)
- East 34th Street (FDR Drive)
- Wall Street/Pier 11 (Gouverneur Lane at South Street/FDR Drive)

At the 34th Street and Wall Street landings, passengers will be able to transfer to the other routes of the NYC Ferry.

The Astoria route joins NYC Ferry's East River, Rockaway and South Brooklyn routes. The latter two launched in May, and the service has seen more than 1.4 million passengers since then, the NYCEDC said.

Additional routes to the Lower East Side and Clason Point in the Soundview section of the Bronx are slated to launch next summer.

Once the final routes are added next year, the Hornblower-operated ferry service will cover more than 60 miles of New York City waterways.

That mileage will likely expand in the future as a 56,000-square-foot homeport for NYC Ferry is currently under construction at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. The port will provide storage for up to 25 ships as well as parts, supplies and more — and be a stop on the Lower East Side route when it launches.

As with the MetroCard for buses and subways, ferry rides cost $2.75 or $121 for a 30-day unlimited pass.

After being threatened with deportation, undocumented mother can stay for 90 days

A mother who fled violence and death threats in her native Guatemala will be allowed to stay in the U.S. for a 90-day period.

AMY RUSSO
@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

An undocumented immigrant from Guatemala will now be allowed to remain in the U.S. for 90 days after being threatened with deportation.

Amanda Morales-Guerra, 33, moved to the U.S. 13 years ago and has three children who have citizenship, but was recently informed she could be forced to leave the country. In response, locals and elected officials gathered at Holyrood Church in Washington Heights to rally against her deportation and provide support for the mother who remains concerned about the future.

Council Member Ydannis Rodriguez announced in a tweet this week that Morales-Guerra would be able to stay in the country during a 90-day period.

"I feel very happy because I know this is the beginning, but it's not the end," she told NBC4. Morales-Guerra has received death threats in her native country and decided to leave in order to flee violence.

She's now receiving support from her community, which is providing her with food, beds and child care while she waits to find out more about her case.

NYC COMMUTE

NJ Transit train derails at Penn Station, straphangers face massive delays on subway

The Wednesday morning commute got off to a chaotic start after a New Jersey Transit train derailed at Penn Station and straphangers faced massive delays on several subway lines.

The NJ Transit derailment was the fourth this year at the nation's busiest rail terminal. The train went off Track 4 around 4:20 a.m., just after leaving the rail yard with only a conductor and motorman on board, the New York Daily News reported.

Neither worker was injured, but the derailment caused residual delays of around 20 minutes on the Northeast Corridor, North Jersey Coast, Morris & Essex and Montclair-Boonton lines because the train cars were blocking a total of five tracks.

By 7 a.m., the train was put back on the tracks and moved, and service resumed "on/close to schedule," NJ Transit said on Twitter.

The agency is still investigating what caused the latest derailment, which came during Amtrak's summer-long repair work at Penn Station that has caused several service changes to NJ Transit, Amtrak and Long Island Rail Road schedules since it began July 10. The work is slated to be done by Sept. 1.

On the subway, other problems strained riders' commutes. Straphangers faced massive delays across several subway lines as the day progressed.

A train with mechanical problems at DeKalb Avenue caused southbound N and Q trains to run on the R line from 34th Street-Herald Square to DeKalb Avenue, while delays were expected on B, D, E, F, M, N, Q and R trains, the MTA said at 10:33 a.m.

A small fire in the tunnel between Queens and Grand Central caused major delays on the 7 train around 9 a.m., the Daily News reported. Officials were investigating the fire's cause, but service resumed with "extensive delays," the MTA tweeted just before 10 a.m. NIKKI M. MASCALI

Keith Olbermann says he knows how Trump's presidency will end

The political pundit connects the dots between some overlooked news reports.

@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

Keith Olbermann, the fiery pundit for whom the term "fiery pundit" was invented, says he knows how President Trump's term will end: fast.

The former ESPN and MSNBC host, who now hosts a political video series, "The Resistance," on the GQ website, connects the dots between a number of recent news reports: One from reporter John Harwood quotes a GOP strategist saying that Trump will resign once the investigation gets too close to his family, Pence will become president and appoint Marco Rubio, and that the "GOP recovers." Another, from BBC World News correspondent Paul Wood, claims former adviser Paul Manafort has

"flipped" and is talking to the FBI and quotes an intelligence community sources as saying that the number of contacts between Trump's people and the Russians "have been underestimated; there are dozens."

Wood also quotes a member of special counsel Robert Mueller's team that a Russian-born business associate of Trump, Felix Sater, who has told family he "knows he and the POTUS are going to prison."

Olbermann says these reports of flips — along with others from The New York Times about Mueller's team talking to fired chief of staff Reince Priebus — indicate that Mueller's investigation is closing in tight.

And, he said, there is historical precedent for how things could end: In the '90s, then-MSNBC host Olbermann was preparing a live celebrity interview when, out of the blue, a producer turned the show upside down with a casual mention that "the president [Clinton] may have to resign tonight" over the scandal involving his sexual dalliances with White House intern Monica Lewinsky.

"For a while now, I have thought the Trump presidency will end suddenly," says Olbermann. "I have been anticipating that Trump's day will begin like any other, and then around dinner time it will suddenly break that he is going to resign."

Keith Olbermann has predictions regarding the Trump administration. GETTY IMAGES

NYC CHURCHES

Nonprofit helps five churches develop affordable housing, community spaces

Navigating the city's real estate world can be brutal for New Yorkers and businesses alike, but some charitable organizations — five to be exact — are getting a little help from the New York Land Opportunity Program (NYLOP) as they look to the future of their property.

Officials announced Wednesday that five churches have been selected to be the first nonprofits to benefit from NYLOP program, which is a joint effort between the Local Initiatives Support Corporation (LISC NYC), the city's Department of Housing Preservation and Development (HPD) and the mayor's Community Affairs Unit.

NYLOP aims to help nonprofits join forces, for free, with lawyers and architects to issue requests for proposals and select developers to turn unused property into affordable housing units and community spaces.

The first five institutions were chosen after four workshops were held in Brooklyn, Queens, Manhattan and the Bronx last fall and a "rigorous" application process. They are:

- The Community Church of New York Unitarian Universalist, which has a property in Manhattan's Murray Hill neighborhood.
- St. Luke's Episcopal Church in the Bronx.
- Shiloh Church of Christ in Harlem.

"Communities often seek guidance and support from their spiritual leaders," HPD Commissioner Maria Torres-Springer said in a statement. "It is only right that we empower and educate these leaders so they can further strengthen their neighborhoods through the creation of affordable housing and expand community programming."

Gold toilet in the Guggenheim will have its final flush in September

Maurizio Cattelan's "America" exhibit will end next month.

LENYON WHITAKER

letters@metro.us

There's still time to use the gold toilet at the Guggenheim.

The fully functional, 18-karat gold toilet at the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum is part of the "America" exhibition and has been operating since last year. According to the Guggenheim, the exhibit will come to an end on September 15 when the gold lavatory will see its final flush.

Italian artist Maurizio Cattelan designed the gold throne, and it is installed in a single-occupancy restroom located at the museum. The piece was made as part of an ongoing project at the museum that first opened last year at the same time. The "America" exhibit is modeled after a regular Kohler toilet and was made in Florence, Italy.

"Cattelan's toilet offers a wink to the excesses of the art market, but also evokes the American dream of opportunity for all — its utility ultimately reminding us of the inescapable physical realities of our shared humanity," the Guggenheim announced in a press release for the exhibit.

Basically, you can use the fabulous fixture the same way you use any other toilet at home or in a public restroom. Just make sure you flush after you handle your business.

There's always a long line of people waiting to use the lavish loo at the Guggenheim. Some have waited in line for more than an hour just to use the special toilet, and we anticipate the lines will be longer as the closing date approaches.

"More than 100,000 people have waited patiently in line for the opportunity to commune with art and with nature," said Nancy Spector, the Guggenheim's artistic director and chief coordinator, on the museum's website.

So, there it is. Maurizio Cattelan's "America" exhibit is over in a few weeks. We recommend you get to the Guggenheim and use the prestigious potty as soon as possible before the show ends and the opportunity goes down the drain.

TV's highest earners revealed, and 'The Big Bang Theory' somehow didn't finish at the top

Robert De Niro and Ellen DeGeneres should feel particularly proud.

GREGORY WAKEMAN
@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

The likes of "Game of Thrones," "House of Cards," "Stranger Things" and "Better Call Saul" mean that we're constantly reminded that this is the golden age of television. But the big question is whether or not its stars are reimbursed accordingly for their work on these shows, especially in comparison to their big-screen peers.

We now have our answer, as the top salaries in television have been revealed, and they make for eye-watering reading. According to Variety, the highest-paid TV actress (although she does talk shows) is none other than Ellen DeGeneres, who takes home $50 million a year because of her work on her daytime talk show. She is closely followed by Judith Sheindlin, otherwise known as Judge Judy, who pockets $47 million. Matt Lauer ($25 million), "American Idol" host Katy Perry ($25 million) and Kelly Ripa ($22 million) round off the top five highest paid TV actors.

"The Big Bang Theory"'s leading quintet of Kaley Cuoco, Johnny Galecki, Simon Helberg, Kunal Nayyar and Jim Parsons then come next, averaging around $21.6 million a year each, courtesy of their $900,000-per-episode contracts. The leading actors on "Game of Thrones" only take home $5 million a year, as they're paid $500,000 for 10 episodes, while "Modern Family"'s Julie Bowen, Ty Burrell, Jesse Tyler Ferguson, Ed

Ellen DeGeneres is the highest-paid TV performer. GETTY IMAGES

O'Neill, Eric Stonestreet and Sofia Vergara earn around $12 million a year because of their $500,000 contracts over 24 episodes.

Robert De Niro actually earned the highest per-episode amount for dramas, as he will be paid $775,000 for David O. Russell's impending Amazon drama, which is still untitled, but should run for 16 episodes across two seasons. If De Niro is in all of them, he will ultimately make $12.4 million.

Other major revelations are that Jimmy Fallon is just ahead of his talk show rivals, as he is paid $16 million a year compared to Stephen Colbert and Jimmy Kimmel at $15 million, while Conan O'Brien and the returning David Letterman are at just $12 million. But whether they were near the top or bottom, any of the people featured on the list can be very happy with a good year's work.

How Joe Morton landed his 'Terminator 2' role

Joe Morton has a Richard Pryor joke to thank for his 'Terminator 2' role.
TRI-STAR PICTURES

The "Scandal" actor also exclusively told Metro why the role of Miles Dyson was so important.

GREGORY WAKEMAN
@MetroNewYork
gregory.wakeman@metro.us

Joe Morton is well aware that "Terminator 2: Judgment Day" is his most defining role. While the 69-year-old actor has appeared and excelled in the likes of "The Brother From Another Planet", "Speed", "Ali", "American Gangster" and, most recently, "Batman v Superman: Dawn Of Justice", it's his part as Miles Dyson, the oblivious creator of Sky-net, that gets him recognized on the street.

But while Morton's acting prowess, and the way he made Dyson a compassionate and endearing character, is a big part of the reason why James Cameron cast him in the film, it also turns out that he has a Richard Pryor joke to thank for helping him secure it. Joe Morton admitted as much when he recently discussed with Metro the return of "Terminator 2: Judgment Day" to the big-screen, this time in 3D, as he recalled his interview process for the 1991 blockbuster.

"I went in and read, and [James Cameron] asked me to wait, and I went to read again, and he said, 'Why was this character, why was this film so important to me?' So I replied, 'Well because of a joke that Richard Pryor had told.' And he said, 'What's that?' And Richard Pryor joked that the reason black characters either get killed off in movies or are not in them at all is because Hollywood doesn't think they'll be there in the future. Cameron laughed and then gave me the part," Morton remarked.

"He obviously knew what I was saying. It was a long kind of, I hate to use the word, tradition. In every sci-fi movie I saw there was a black character in it that was killed off early. Or there were no black characters at all. Or the black characters were insignificant. I think he knew what I was saying right away, and I think it's what got me the job."

While Joe Morton wouldn't go as far as to say that the character of Miles Dyson is progressive, he did note that it was immediately striking that he was "central to the core of the film," something that was rare in mainstream blockbusters at the time.

"There weren't many black male actors doing that kind of thing in mainstream films," Morton says. "So the fact that he's essential to the plot, for all intents and purposes he is Doctor Frankenstein, he creates the monster. So from a moral standpoint that's why he has to die in the film, as does the monster."

GETTY

And what memorable deaths they were. Both Joe Morton's as Miles Dyson and Arnold Schwarzenegger's as the T-800 are regarded as two of the greatest in modern cinema history. You can remind yourselves exactly why both of these scenes made such a huge impact, and why "Terminator 2: Judgment Day" is still one of the best examples of the action genre, when it is released back into cinemas in 3D on August 25.

Why Knee Arthritis Sufferers Of Almost All Ages Are New York Doc's Merge Best of High Tec

Fraction of the cost, minimal risk and Hundreds of arthritis sufferers from tri-state area calling weekly

By Matt Edgar

America's Health Writer

New York City - Everyone has said it at one time or another. If I had only known about "this" sooner - things would be very different today.

That's what many knee arthritis pain sufferers are saying about this technology and treatment.

"We all know that countless lives are being saved every year because of early detection and better treatment" noted the clinic director at the NY Pain MD in New York City. "The same holds true for treating arthritis pain. I believe we are having so much success at NY Pain MD because of two factors: One is we are using advanced medical technology and treatments many clinics do not use. And second, the word has spread to our community and so many knee arthritis sufferers are coming in sooner. And the earlier we can treat knee arthritis - the better the results. The key to trying to avoid knee replacement surgery is doing the correct treatment as soon as possible"

What is the "correct treatment?"

"That depends," said the director. "There is no one answer when it comes to medical conditions. Knee arthritis is no different. That's why, if you have knee pain, you should have it evaluated by a doctor who deals with and treats knee pain every day," added the director.

For many knee arthritis pain sufferers the right treatment is Viscosupplementation whereby a preparation of Hyaluronic acid a gel-like FDA approved medicine is applied directly into the knee joint using Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology.

Hyaluronic acid is the natural lubricant and shock absorber of your joints and is found to be decreased in arthritis sufferers. This is similar to running your car without oil. Obviously, the sooner you put oil back in the car - the less damage will be done. That's why some doctors feel early viscosupplementation gets the best results and is so important for avoiding surgery.

The director believes one of the most important factors for the success of viscosupplementation is making sure you are getting it into the joint space precisely. That's why the doctors at NY Pain MD use advanced imaging technology to apply Precision Arthritis Targeting during every treatment.

A device called the "C-Arm" allows the doctor to see into the joint and actually watch the medicine be applied exactly where it is supposed to. Research shows that performing procedures without Precision Arthritis Targeting (P.A.T.T.) can result in missing the joint space as much as 30% of the time. If you had viscosupplementation treatments without Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology and did not get good results - this may be why.

Can This Be Avoided? Total knee replacement is serious surgery requiring months of rehabilitation. Some doctors think modern treatments done early enough can keep baby boomers from going under the knife.

Normal Pain-Free Knee Joint

Everyone Wants Proof:

In the artist simulated drawings, picture #1 is a normal, pain-free knee. There is no arthritis and the knee can move and bend freely without pain.

Knee With Painful Arthritis

Pain -

Illustration shown is a knee joint with painful osteoarthritis. Arthritis causes the joint space to decrease, grinding, stiffness, decreased motion, bone spurs, swelling and a lot of pain.

Research Shows Doctors Miss The Joint Space Up To 30% Of The Time Without Advanced Imaging

Failed Treatment -

The injection (Lubrication medicine) misses the joint space. Research shows this occurs up to 30% of the time without the use of the digital imaging to guide the injection. This is why lubrication medicine may not have worked for you

Lubrication Medicine Injected Directly Into Knee Joint Like "Joint Oil" using Precision Targeting Technology

Successful Treatment -

Choosing Newest Medical Procedures Before Surgery h Medicine And All Natural Treatments

little to no downtime amongst top reasons.

to find out if treatment is right for them...Often covered by insurance.

If you qualify for this treatment, it might be one of the happiest days of your life.

That's because, for the 2 ½ years thousands of knee pain sufferers have flocked to the NY Pain MD New York City

That's when their specially trained-doctors added cutting-edge arthritis treatments to their already successful comprehensive knee pain relief program.

Viscosupplementation is unique because - even though it is manufactured by a pharmaceutical company, it is NOT considered a drug because it is a natural substance with an incredible story.

Why So Many Want It

You see, when you suffer with arthritis - the lubricating fluid (synovial fluid) in your knee joint dries up.

This means instead of gliding smoothly - your bones start to rub and grind against each other.

This causes a little pain in the beginning - but over time the pain steadily gets worse until it is excruciating.

Like "Joint Oil"

Viscosupplementation works so well because it is like "joint oil." It is a natural substance that contains one of the natural building blocks of the synovial fluid that lubricates your knee.

Scientists and researchers discovered this natural building block to synovial fluid in the rooster's comb - that big red thing on top of the roosters head. It is extracted from the roosters comb, purified and concentrated. They have also developed medical lubricants that are also natural but made a bit like yogurt and "cultured" into highly effective arthritis pain-fighting medical lubricants.

When introduced directly into your knee joint, it is like squirting oil on a rusty door hinge.

Viscosupplementation allows your joints to glide more smoothly eliminating a lot of the rubbing, grinding and pain.

Can Supplements Do The Same Thing?

No. Glucosamine and chondroitin and other supplements are much different. You can only get this from a doctor and it often helps knee pain sufferers who got limited or no success from glucosamine and chondroitin. Beware of unsubstantiated claims made by supplements to do what this advanced medical procedure does.

Why You Should Try This Even If You've Already Had Similar Treatments Without Results...

"We have been able to help so many knee pain sufferers even many who have already tried other treatments like Synvisc, Supartz, Orthovisc and even Hyalgan. This is because our treating doctors always use "Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology". This allows us to place the Viscosupplementation exactly where it needs to be. Studies show doctors doing joint injections without Technology can miss the joint up to 30% of the time." noted the Director of Center

NY Pain MD is a state of the art medical facility offering the best technology.

Advanced Medical Technology Can Make All The Difference: This advanced Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology using fluoroscopic imaging allows doctors to see directly into the knee joint so treatments are precise and the FDA approved lubricating medicine actually goes EXACTLY where it is supposed to. Studies show that procedures done without this technology can miss the joint up to 30% of the time. This is one reason Viscosupplementation may not have worked for you in the past. NY Pain MD uses this P.A.T. Imaging Technology. with each and every treatment.

And that's not all :

"Every case is individual. Some patients get quite a bit of relief right away - others take a little more time. But most have been extremely happy. We've noted results lasting no less than 6 months for many but up to 2 years for some patients.. Patients who were suffering for years with bad knee pain are getting their lives back... going for walks again and exercising. It's amazing to see. They tell all their friends - that's why we are swarmed. After getting treatment and feeling better, many patients have decided to cancel their total knee replacement surgeries." added the director.

How To Find Out If It Can Help You?

If you have knee pain, the NY Pain MD doctors would like to invite you for a no-obligation screening to see if you are a candidate for their treatments using Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology.

9 Key elements to the 'Game of Thrones' finale

What to expect from one of the most anticipated episodes in television history.

HBO has shared some tidbits about the "Game of Thrones" season seven finale, airing Sunday, Aug. 27, which will see its many characters coming together for an explosive episode. Here's what you can expect.

Dragonpit

The Dragonpit is a huge structure in King's Landing that house Targaryen once used as a stable for its dragons. This is where Cersei and Daenerys' meeting takes place.

The meeting

Each Dragonpit attendee has his or her own agenda. For Cersei, it's getting Daenerys to

Wights

This is the name given to the zombies created by the Night King. Jon and Daenerys have captured one to prove their existence to Cersei.

Sansa and Arya

The tension between the sisters has grown exponentially, and they are now two massively different people. Their perspectives are countered, and this could lead to a deeper division of the family.

Viserion

Now that the Night King has Viserion the dragon among his ranks, it is likely that the Night

Army will be able to cross The Wall for the very first time and invade Winterfell.

The Wall

Last season, Benjen Stark explained the rules that protect the Wall: "The wall is not just ice and stone," he told Bran and Meera. "Ancient spells were carved from its foundation. Strong magic. To protect men from what is beyond. And as

He was appointed by Cersei as commander of the naval forces after he delivered Ellaria, Tyene and Yara Greyjoy to her and burnt Daenerys' fleet.

Sam Tarly

Back in episode five, Samwell, accompanied by Gilly and their son, set off to Winterfell to reveal how to defeat the Night Army. Gilly also learned a very valuable secret about Rhaegar Targaryen.

What kills White Walkers?

Valyrian steel and dragon-glass have so far been the only elements capable of eliminating the White Walkers. During the penultimate episode Jon discovers that killing a White Walker kills its converted wights.

'The Tick' is a fun, but ultimately unnecessary, reboot

It's a bird. It's a plane.
It's ... The Tick?

MATT JUUL
@RunTheJuuls
matthew.juul@metro.us

Who knows what evil lurks in the hearts of men? But "The Tick" promises to bring down the bad guys with a refreshing dash of silliness.

The world has been inundated with superhero properties over the years, usually featuring a dark and melancholic hero à la Ben Affleck's moody Batman or a convoluted cosmic universe of characters like Marvel's never-ending series of flicks and shows. As Hollywood continues to churn out these super-powered projects, it's hard to get excited for yet another hero flying onto screens.

While "The Tick," which debuts on Amazon Friday, is a fun, meta-take on the popular genre, it doesn't pack a big-enough punch to make a serious dent in the crowded world of Spandex-wearing crime fighters. Sure, it's trying to go the "Deadpool" route by focusing more on the laughs than supervillain beatdowns, but the jokes that poke fun at superheroic troupes eventually get tired as the series goes on, similar to NBC's now canceled "Powerless" sitcom.

tious, easily making him the best character on the show.

Despite this, the series tends to focus a bit too much on The Tick's reluctant sidekick Arthur (Griffin Newman), who ends up getting the origin story treatment in the opening episodes. Although it's an interesting departure from the comic books as well as the cartoon and previous series, Amazon's reboot relies heavily on showcasing Arthur's journey and many neurotic issues, which take away from the fun at times.

Overall, Serafinowicz's take on The Tick does justice to the character, who was made famous in the flesh by Patrick Warburton in the critically-acclaimed, but short-lived 2001 live-action show. He's a lovable weirdo that definitely brings the laughs.

However, as a series, there's not enough going on for "The Tick" to make it stand out from every other superhero property that's taken over the airwaves.

For folks who aren't already fans of the big blue bug, "The Tick" stars Peter Serafinowicz as the aforementioned hero, who's super-strong, but also super dumb. While he can barely remember what he had for breakfast, The Tick's optimism and bravado are infec-

It's all aces at the 2017 US Open

We've got your guide to the best of the U.S. Open tennis tournament on and off the court.

EVA KIS
@thisiskis
eva.kis@metro.us

The city's largest sports event of the year, the U.S. Open tennis tournament, officially kicks off Aug. 28 through Sept. 10 in Flushing Meadows-Corona Park. Not all the action is on the court though — we've got your guide to the highlights of the tournament inside the Billie Jean King Tennis Complex and beyond.

High drama on the court

It's been a wild year in tennis. Forget the eclipse — there had to be some truly special celestial alignments to make this, the last Grand Slam on the tennis calendar, one of the most anticipated tournaments of the year. On the women's side, Maria Sharapova is only in because of a wild card slot, while Venus Williams is playing the best she has in a decade. Roger Federer, who sat out last year's tournament because of an injury, is back to try to reclaim U.S. Open glory by going for his sixth win (and first since 2008) this year. All this uncertainty will certainly mean extra excitement in the stands.

Free days

You don't have to pay to see some action. Grounds access starts at just $60, which will get you into many of the smaller courts for lower-ranked match-ups. Or you can watch the pros practice their serves and aces during the totally free qualifying and practice rounds from Aug. 22-27. Another option is U.S. Open Community Day (Thursday, Sept. 7) when entry is free to the grounds and most games.

The U.S. Open in Manhattan

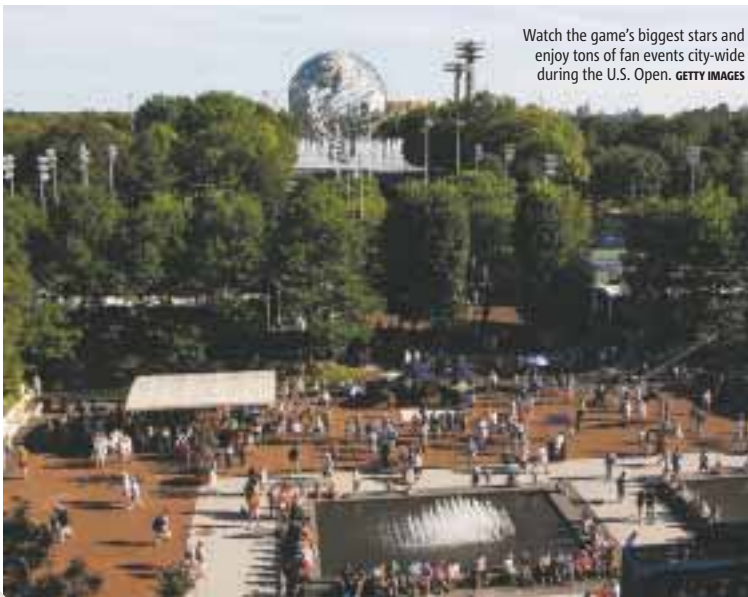

The Queens tournament crosses the river for the first time to open a fan zone called the U.S. Open Experience in the Seaport District on Aug. 24-25 from 10 a.m.-8 p.m. Inside a pop-up modeled after the Billie Jean King Tennis Center's new covered court, you'll find tons of fan activities like demonstrations by star players, selfies with the tournament trophies and a view from a courtside umpire's chair, meet-and-greets, live music and more.

Learn from the pros

This year, the U.S. Open launched Net Generation to start out kids ages 5-18 in tennis. Get some play time with the pros on Aug. 24 from 10-11 a.m. at the U.S. Open Experience at the Seaport District, or bring them to the annual free Arthur Ashe Kids' Day on Aug. 26 beginning Foundation. All ages and abilities are welcome, with Lacoste giving away plenty of gear to get you in top form.

Get custom gear

Anyone can get a T-shirt saying they were at the 2017 U.S. Open, but Ralph Lauren is offering a more personal souvenir. The brand, which has been outfitting players at the tournament since 2005, has set up a booth where you can customize their signature Polo shirt for men, women and children with various designs like crossed oversize racquets and fans' names.

You gotta eat

The tournament attracts some top-tier talent from the food world, too.

Burger king Josh Capon is bringing his own take on the lobster roll and coffee shop Dean & DeLuca is branching into the savory world with items like Wagyu hot dogs, according to the NY Post. Marcus Samuelsson is bringing a taste of Harlem with the Mojito Restaurant & Bar. Also new to the event are Korilla BBQ with a new Poke Yachty concept, Joju with Vietnamese sandwiches and Creperie by Le Chef Paul.

Where to watch the Mayweather-McGregor fight

Genres will collide this Saturday when boxer Floyd Mayweather comes out of retirement to take on the UFC's biggest star, Conor McGregor.

Watching the Aug. 26 fight at home would run you a cool $99.95 — and it won't match the atmosphere of a bar full of rowdy fans ready to see some action.

Plenty of bars are showing the fight around town, but we found some outstanding viewing parties for a guaranteed good time:

McGettigan's Irish Pub:

The popular sports bar for everything from cricket to rugby will screen the fight throughout the bar as well as on a giant screen. Tables are first come, first served with a

Slate: Stay busy at this upscale party bar with two floors of foosball, ping-pong and pool tables plus live music by Scram Jones leading up to the fight, which will be screened on a 20-foot

HD video wall as well as TVs throughout the venue. Hosted by Harlem rapper Dave East, entry is $20 while customizable table packages going up to $3,500. The party starts at 7 p.m. and goes until 4 a.m. 54 W. 21st St., Flatiron, 212-989-0096

Kilo Bravo: Williamsburg's beloved low-key sports bar is offering a free pint of Bud Light with every ticket (starting at $20; $40 will get you a seat at the bar). Kitchen is open all night with food specials. 180 N. 10th St., 347-987-4379

Queens Bully: Looking for a more low-key place to watch the fight? This new Forest Hills gastropub will be open with a $30 cover (includes one drink), mixing up cocktails and serving barbecue and sides like Corona elote beginning at 5 p.m., with a DJ spinning before and after the fight until 4 a.m. 113-30 Queens Blvd., 718-520-8600

Watermark Bar: No reservations, just show up to the Hudson-adjacent bar in the Financial District to watch the fight. Entry is $20; snack on spicy cheese nuggets and giant Angus beef hot dogs, with games like cornhole on their large patio on Pier 15. 78 South St., 212-742-8200

Libation: The McGregor and Mayweather fight will more than likely have a winner, but neither of them can beat a $1 themed cocktail from 8-9 p.m. Enjoy three floors of entertainment with a live DJ for just $25 (table service starts at $100), with five jumbo HD projectors and 16 screens to watch the action. 137 Ludlow St., libation@ingoodcompany.com EVA KIS

When it comes to Florida, Miami, Key West and the west coast city of Tampa steal much of the destination headlines.

But you should know about Fort Lauderdale, which sits just half an hour north of Miami with plenty to offer when it comes to beaches, restaurants and culture.

Fort Lauderdale is a low-key getaway, not as crowded as most South Florida beaches with all the amenities of the city that lies just a few blocks from the shore.

Getting oriented

The best way to get around Fort Lauderdale is by Water Taxi (day passes are $26 for adults, $12 for kids under 11). Once you're on the beach, it's nice to not think about having to get behind the wheel again. It's a great way to avoid the expense of valet parking, and allows you to imbibe without worry. The Water Taxi allows doesn't just offer transportation — it's also a tour. And your ticket is good for discounts at nearby restaurants and bars.

On the beach

The Fort Lauderdale's pristine beaches have been continuously certified as Blue Wave Beaches by the Clean Beaches Council since 1999. You have your pick of beaches to visit, but Lauderdale-By-The-Sea is a gem that remains a local secret.

The quaint beachside hamlet is also one of the only locations in Florida where the three-tier natural coral reef system is close enough for visitors to swim out for snorkeling or diving. In the evening, if you visit during a Friday night, the main street that runs through the charming town is blocked off for live music.

Lauderdale-By-The-Sea is a quaint slice of paradise.

Culture with your mai tai

Fort Lauderdale is Florida's surprisingly sophisticated beachside destination. ED CONDRAN

You're practically in the ocean already in the lobby of the Sonesta Fort Lauderdale.

A water taxi is the most scenic way to commute.

Arts & culture hub

The atmosphere along Florida's balmy eastern coast has morphed from a spring break destination to a tonier, more adult-oriented scene.

Luxe properties dot Las Olas Boulevard, an avenue showcasing the best of local art in dozens of galleries. Spend an afternoon walking down the road shaded by giant, old trees, popping in and out of galleries while enjoying ice cream, al fresco drinks and live music coming from seemingly every other venue.

If you have kids, a stop at the Museum of Discovery and Science is a must. This innovative museum with a Rube Goldberg machine in its courtyard pioneering interactive exhibits and offers touch pools with wildlife native to Florida, sections on the state's role in NASA and an IMAX theater. Florida might not get much credit for history, but there is plenty of it in the Sunshine State. For those who like to look back, there's the striking Bonnet House. The historic home, also known as the Bartlett Estate, is a gorgeous plantation-style house that also served as the finish line for the seventh season of "The Amazing Race."

Where to eat

There are an array of restaurants worth checking out. For those looking for trendy and tasty, head to nearby Hollywood for modern Japanese food and sushi at Monkita. With dim lighting and craft cocktails, every night is date night.

Celebrity chef Geoffrey Zakarian is back in South Florida with his latest bistro, Point Royal, also in Hollywood. Coastal American cuisine is the theme, and you can't go wrong with braised mussels in a coconut-curry broth or pomegranate short ribs.

Those looking for comfort food will enjoy Back Alley Bar & BBQ, located just off the beach. The mac n' cheese is the go-to dish to go with your massive pulled pork sandwich.

Where to stay

Hotels in Fort Lauderdale are as ubiquitous as palm trees. However, there are establishments that are a cut above the rest, such as the Sonesta Fort Lauderdale Beach.

Situated along the picturesque seven-mile stretch of Fort Lauderdale beach, the hotel is a prime destination with oceanfront views and a laid-back sophistication. The stylish property boasts a striking design that provides every guest with breathtaking waterfront views.

For those who are all about working out, the fitness center is filled with up-to-date equipment and an inviting spa.

Options for recreation right on site are plentiful at the Sonesta Fort Lauderdale Beach. Guests can choose to lounge on the sundeck or under a cabana by the outdoor pool. Libations can be ordered poolside or inside from the lobby bar.

The elegant on-site restaurant Bistro offers fresh seafood and an extensive wine list, as well as artisanal breads, gourmet coffee and local favorites like island snapper and mojo chicken.

Daily Delights is the tag for Sonesta Fort Lauderdale Beach's lobby treats, which range from warm homemade cookies to a glass of Prosecco to seafood stew.

Aside from the array of amenities, the Sonesta Fort Lauderdale Beach is in an enviable position thanks to location, right in the heart of Fort Lauderdale.

Vermont's sugar maples should reach their peak in early October.
JOE SOHM, VISIONS OF AMERICA/UG

When is peak fall foliage?

Here's when you should head out to see the leaves change this year.

EVA KIS
@thisiskis
eva.kis@metro.us

Whether or not you're sad to see summer end, fall makes it easy with spectacular displays of color throughout the country as the leaves turn from green to brown.

A map created by Smoky Mountains officials reveals just when areas around the country are about to hit peak foliage.

The map uses data from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, which factors in historical and modern forecast temperatures and rainfall to calculate when you should expect the most spectacular colors to take over the parks, forests and hills near you.

This year's peak leaf-peeping season is expected to arrive sooner than usual, according to Travel + Leisure.

"This year's leaf model is predicting an earlier-than-typical peak fall," SmokyMountains.com data scientist Wes Melton tells the site. Blame above-average temperatures and heavy rain over the summer in much of the region.

So when should you head out to see the leaves transition from their summer greens to yellow, orange and red in the Northeast? By Sept. 17, much of the region will be near its peak beauty, reaching its gorgeous crimson and gold crescendo in the following two weeks. By Oct. 1, it'll all be over.

Plan your road trips accordingly.

Top prop bets for fight night

MATT BURKE
@burke_metro
matthew.burke@metro.us

The verbal back-and-forth between Conor McGregor and Floyd Mayweather ahead of this Saturday night's mega fight has been so over-the-top that no one blinked this week when McGregor said it was entirely possible that he'll knock out Mayweather in 10 seconds.

Of course, Mayweather has never been legitimately knocked to the ground once in his 49 fight career.

So, enough with the talking – let's get to the prop bets:

Updated NBA championship odds after Kyrie Irving trade

Boston could challenge for their first title since 2008 after trading Isaiah Thomas and more for the Cavaliers star point guard.

JOE PANTORNO
@JoePantorno
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Let's be honest, it's going to take something special to catch the Golden State Warriors.

But on Tuesday night, the Boston Celtics gave it a go as they traded Isaiah Thomas, Jae Crowder, Ante Zizic and a 2018 first-round pick acquired from the Brooklyn Nets to the Cleveland Cavaliers for four-time All-Star point guard Kyrie Irving.

The deal ends Irving's lengthy trade saga and gives the Celtics — whose starting five is now one of the most imposing in basketball — a Finals winner who helped slay the Warriors in 2016.

Just looking at it on paper though, this looks like a pretty entertaining Eastern Conference finals matchup:

CELTICS PROJECTED STARTING FIVE

PG: Kyrie Irving
SG: Gordon Hayward
SF: Jaylen Brown
PF: Marcus Morris
C: Al Horford

CAVALIERS PROJECTED STARTING FIVE

PG: Isaiah Thomas
SG: J.R. Smith
SF: LeBron James
PF: Kevin Love
C: Tristan Thompson

Obviously, the deal has shaken up Vegas as there is a team that can now legitimately challenge the Cavaliers to make it out of the East this year.

Here are the latest NBA championship odds, courtesy of Odds Shark.

Spoiler alert, Knicks and Nets fans: You're not near the top of the list.

Geno could secure his Giants roster spot against former team

Despite some inconsistencies, Smith is likely to make Big Blue's roster.

KRISTIAN DYER
@KristianRDyer
sports@metro.us

There were some mistakes, but Geno Smith seems to be settling in nicely for the New York Giants and despite a fourth-quarter interception, there is still a pretty good argument that he will make this team's roster.

On Saturday night, he'll have a chance to bolster down that spot against his former team, the New York Jets, in the annual "Snoopy Bowl."

Smith, who hasn't thrown a pass in a regular season game since October, has looked solid for the Giants so far this summer.

He went 11-for-17 for 79 yards on Monday night against the Browns, that goal-line interception certainly not a good thing.

But through two games, the former Jets second-round pick has shown more good than bad. His progressions have been good and his reading of defenses appears to have taken a step forward as well.

All things that, come decision day, might give him an advantage over Josh Johnson to earn the right to carry a clipboard behind Eli Manning this season.

Rookie Davis Webb is likely a lock to make the roster and the Giants could carry a third quarterback on the roster this year.

"I thought he made some nice throws, made some nice decisions," Giants head coach Ben McAdoo said on a conference call on Tuesday. "He completed the ball, we just have to eliminate the critical errors in the ball game."

The numbers are mixed, but promising.

While Smith has the second-highest completion percentage on the team, the rest of his numbers don't stand out. He hasn't thrown a touchdown yet (no Giants quarterback has this preseason) and he has two interceptions, the only two picks the Giants have thrown this preseason.

But his 5.8 yards per passing attempt lead the team, meaning that Smith is generally making smart decisions.

Keep in mind that he is also coming off a season-ending knee injury, meaning there's some rust to be shaken off.

Should Smith make the team? Despite the interceptions, he might have the most upside of any of the backups on Big Blue's roster, including Webb.

Out of all the Giants passers not named Manning, Smith clearly has the most NFL experience. Despite being in the league since 2008, Johnson has 29 appearances and just five starts. Smith has 30 starts in just four years.

He also has experience playing at MetLife Stadium, an advantage given the wind that is notorious at the Meadowlands.

But McAdoo warned everyone not to read into the fact that Smith has gotten a lot more snaps than Johnson.

"That's just the way it went last night. We wanted to keep it fairly even, but the way the game broke down, the way the game worked itself out there at the end of the first half and at the beginning of the second half, that's just the way it went and we're going to continue to evaluate it," McAdoo said. "We don't have a timetable on it and we'll let those guys keep going, competing."

Aries You'll find it hard to sit still. Changing your mind or direction will make you appear inconsistent and disorganized. Stay focused on finishing what you start.

Taurus Travel may entice you, but don't take flight on the spur of the moment. Organization will help you avoid interference from others close to you.

Gemini Get in the game. Share your ideas and collaborate with people who have similar goals. A celebration will tempt you, but you should monitor your diet.

Cancer Keep an open mind and give others the benefit of the doubt. Taking action based on a dodgy assumption will lead to an emotionally tense situation.

Leo Explore unfamiliar places. An encounter with someone you meet along the way will give you reason to consider making a change to the way you earn your living.

Virgo Reconnect with someone you have worked with in the past. A partnership will tempt you. Discuss what you are willing to offer and what you expect in return.

Libra Avoid taking on too much or giving in to someone using emotional tactics to get you to pursue or take part in something you have doubts about.

Scorpio Time is money, so don't linger on the past or people who have nothing to offer. If you run a carefully considered campaign, you will meet many demands.

Sagittarius Look at your prospects and consider what will bring you the most satisfaction. Change your plans to suit your schedule. Take better care of your health.

Capricorn Stick to guidelines and rules. Listen to good advice and walk away from situations that appear to be emotionally sticky. Use intelligence, not brute force.

Aquarius Rely on common sense to lead you in the right direction. Follow your heart when it comes to health issues. Stick to a nutritious diet.

Pisces Avoid unstable situations or relationships. You are best off moving forward alone if you feel uncomfortable with the way someone treats you. EUGENIA LAST
